BYRD PREDICTS DEFICIT

Senator Harry F. Byrd, Virginia Democrat who is famed for his knowledge of economics and government finance, has predicted a deficit for the coming fiscal year of between 1.2 billion dollars and 4.2 billion dollars. This contrasts with the surplus predicted by President Eisenhower, in presenting his budget to Congress, which the President hopes will total $70,000,000,000.

The present fiscal year has produced a disastrous deficit, which may now total over $13,000,000,000. The latest estimate, in Washington, was for something over $12,000,000,000, but the Joint Committee in Internal Revenue Taxation has recently predicted the deficit will total between 13.1 billion and 14 billion dollars.

Senator Byrd says the need for President Eisenhower to veto every bill involving excessive expenditures is crystal clear and vital to this country's future. The reader probably knows that the United States taxpayer is now burdened with an interest bill each year totalling approximately $7,000,000,000. This huge amount of money (the total federal budget is about $77,000,000,000) is needed to pay interest on a national debt which is edging toward $300,000,000,000.

The deficit for the current fiscal year, if it reaches $14,000,000,000, as the joint committee predicts, will mean that the U. S. taxpayer will be saddled with an additional annual interest assessment of more than one-half billion dollars.

18,000 ACCIDENTS

There have been 18,000 military aircraft accidents in the past five years, according to the latest study in Washington. These accidents have cost the United States $3,000,000,000 and 5,000 fatalities.

While military aviation cannot be compared to commercial aviation, for various reasons, a comparison between commercial airlines and MATS, the military air transport service, is interesting.

These figures show that the record of MATS reveals about twice as many fatalities as that of the average commercial airline. We would think, tentatively, and claiming to be no military expert, that this is excessively high.

We wonder whether military transportation ground vehicles also show a similar disparity with commercial counterparts. In any event, it seems that added attention to the problem of military air accidents is indicated. Happily, the 1958 record was the best in some years, and it is hoped that this trend will continue.

DO YOU REMEMBER THESE DATES?

It is good to remember the great days which have passed in earlier years. April has been a memorable month in U. S. history. A look at a few of the memorable days will support this statement.

On April 6, forty-two years ago, the United States declared war on Germany. That was in 1917. The war lasted nineteen months.

April 7 is remembered as the day of the first settlement in Ohio, at Marietta, in 1788. April 8 is remembered as the day on which Clay and Randolph fought their famous duel, in 1826, and also the day Ponce de Leon landed on the coast of Florida near St. Augustine, seeking the legendary fountain of youth, in 1513.

Today, April 9, is one of the best-remembered dates in American history, for it was on this day in 1865 that Generals Robert E. Lee and Ulysis S. Grant made Peace at Appomattox. Lee had whipped Grant on a number of occasions, sometimes with only half his strength, but Grant's persistence and superior resources and manpower of the Union had worn down Lee's sterling army, and Grant won the last, and most important battle.

There are many other memorable dates in April. One is April 12, the year on which, in 1777, Henry Clay was born in Hanover County, Va. A grateful nation must not forget its great days of history. Especially must we here at Appomattox not forget April 9, and what it has meant these 94 years since 1865.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Doc Didn't Pull His Punch

The other day Doc Williams got to talking about one of his patients.

"This fellow had a bad tooth," he explained, "but I told him I could save it with a few prompt treatments. Then, after that one visit it was six months before he came back.

"This time," Doc said, "this check was all swollen up. It's that same tooth," he said. 'Think we can save it?' Sure, I said, after I take it out you can put it in your pocket and take it home with you."

From where I sit, trouble gets worse with neglect. That's why we should never ignore "interference" in any form. Sometimes it crops up in little things like begrudging a man his right to a glass of beer, or telling him what kind of television programs he should watch. Let's all respect our neighbor's preferences and opinions. That way we won't "grate" at each other's borders.

April Busy Time For Gardeners

The time has come for the home gardener to dispense with winter dreaming and be up and at'em.

Jim Smith, county agent, says seed for early planting, and fertilizer, should be on hand; and tools and equipment should be in top condition. The part of the garden to be planted this month should be ready, and the rest of the garden to be planted later should be plowed.

Some of the vegetables to plant for the early garden include asparagus, beets, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, collards, green peas, kale, head and leaf lettuce, mustard, onions, potatoes, radishes, spinach, turnips, and turnip salad.

Plant together vegetables that mature at about the same time. Spinach, mustard, kale, leaf lettuce, and turnips mature in about 45 to 50 days. Beets, peas, and carrots mature in about 60 to 70 days. It may take 75 to 80 days for collards, head lettuce, cabbage, and broccoli to mature.

Just before planting be sure to have a well-worked, smooth, clean seed bed, fertilized according to suggestions in VPI Circular 639, "Vegetable Gardening in Virginia," available from the county agent, or from the VPI Agricultural Extension Service, Blacksburg. This circular also has a planting chart, listing tips on rates and depth of planting and other information for the home gardener.

Offers Thanks For Fund Aid

Charles Wilson, president of the Appomattox County Chapter of the Virginia Society for Crippled Children and Adults, expressed appreciation to the public for its support of the Society's Easter Seal campaign in a statement released today.

"We of the Easter Seal Society wish to take this opportunity of thanking each person who contributed to the drive which has just closed.," Wilson said. "We are grateful to not only those who contributed money to the campaign, but also to all of the volunteer workers who had a part in it. We also want to thank the newspapers, radio and television stations, and other groups who helped publicize our efforts."

Wilson pointed out that while the drive officially closed last Sunday, it is not too late to make a donation.."

He said that contributions may be sent to "Crippled Children," in care of the local Postmaster.

Labor Lost

Newport, Ky.- Ernest Johnson put a new roof on his house, then fired up his stove and relaxed.

Soon his roof was ablaze and his home was full of smoke.

Firefighters saved part of the roof and said the trouble was Johnson built the roof right over the chimney.

ALL-ELECTRIC KITCHEN

HOME ADVISOR: You'll want many other electric servants. But here's how I'd pick a basic All-Electric Kitchen staff.

YOU: Which would you call most important?

HOME ADVISOR: That's hard to say, because the wonderful thing about an All-Electric Kitchen is the way the whole staff works together and works with you. But I'd start with the cooking team. A Refrigerator-Freezer to keep both fresh and frozen food. And an Automatic Electric Range. The range is a joy. It lets you cook better, more accurately. It gives you the world's cleanest cooking. And the automatic top element and clock-controlled oven save you hours of pot-watching and oven hovering.

YOU: But cooking's fun. I'd rather save on clean-up time.

HOME ADVISOR: Then you'll certainly want an Electric Dishwasher and a Food Disposer . . . backed up by an Electric Water Heater. Together they save at least five or six hours a week . . . give you cleaner dishes . . . magic away garbage down the drain.

Add your choice of smaller electric helpers. Exhaust fan, Mixer, automatic Coffee Maker, Pop-Up Toaster. And you're all set from mixing to slicing in an All-Electric Dream Kitchen!
